LODGE TO CELEBRATE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Marking the tenth anniversary of the organization, Sierra Madre Lodge No. 408, F. & A. M., will hold a celebration on the evening of December 16, to which invitations are sent out this week. The dispensation under which the lodge worked for nearly a year before the charter was granted, was dated December 15, 1909.

The feature of the celebration, to which all Masons and their wives or sweethearts are invited, will be a "Melting Pot." The invitations bear a request for the deposit of some article of silver, old jewelry, table ware, or a coin. These will be melted up or used to pay the expense of a new set of what are known to the craft as working tools and jewels, for use in the impressive ritual work of the order. They will be of solid silver, suitably engraved for the local lodge.

Starting out with a membership of about twenty, the lodge has grown to about eighty members. The present year has seen the largest increase of any since the first year or two. There are also about twenty Masons residing in Sierra Madre who retain their membership in lodges elsewhere.

THE WOMEN'S CLUB.

By Mrs. Palmer Rhodes.

At the Monday meeting of the Woman's Club, it was the pleasure of the directors, thru the program committee, Mrs. F. P. Sperry and Mrs. Frank Hart, to present Miss Georgiella Lay, who gave a musical lecture, which was one of the finest exhibitions of its kind ever presented here.

Beginning with the oldest melody ever written, of which there is any record, Miss Lay carried her hearers with her down thru the decades, taking up the grand old composers, one by one, telling of the progress made by each and illustrating her remarks on the piano. Miss Lay's interpretative ability in most miraculously developed and this, together with her touch, at once so delicate and so strong, brought from the piano many touchingly sad as well as joyously gay moods of various renowned composers.

The directors of the club were pleased that a few of the members, recognizing the treat that had been prepared for them, were there to receive and enjoy it, but a sense of shame is inevitable, when a program of such high class, is presented to so many empty chairs.

As has been stated before, an extra effort is being made this year to bring to the club only programs of splendid repute, which act means a constant expenditure of time and money. Can you see where this will be a benefit to Sierra Madre? Are you behind the club in this progressive step? Then as a member of the club it behooves you to see that there is at least one less empty chair and thus make manifest to the directors that you not only approve, but appreciate their efforts.

The hostesses, Mrs. F. W. Nuetzel and Mrs. Woodson Jones, have also made an extra effort to serve tastily prepared refreshments, which, coming as they do at the close of the program, adds not a little to the pleasure of the afternoon and fosters a note of hospitality which is always refreshing.

The club dance this week will be a barn dance and is being looked forward to as the really jolly event of the season. The lack of an evening dress or a dress suit need not keep you at home since any but "barn clothes" will be tabooed. A little surprise in the way of refreshments in being planned.

The club ladies will be prepared to entertain with cards any preferring that kind of entertainment.

SUDDEN DEMISE

The news of the sudden death of Mr. H. A. Binford came as a shock to this community on Saturday last.

Mr. Binford, who conducted a restaurant and automobile livery on Mountain Trail Ave., was well known here and had many friends among those he associated with. He was taken ill Friday and hurried to the Pasadena hospital, where his trouble was diagnosed as appendicitis. An operation was performed, from which he never rallied. Several months ago he had a severe illness, which at that time was treated for stomach trouble. It is believed now this was a milder form of the trouble that caused his demise. A short time ago Mr. Binford opened another store at La-Manda Park, where he spent most of his time, leaving his business here in charge of other parties. He leaves a widow to mourn his loss.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Allen T. Gay's undertaking parlors, Rev. C. C. Wilson officiating. His interment took place in Pasadena, the Odd Fellows Lodge of Pasadena conducting services at the grave.

DESERTERS CAPTURED

Privates Casico, Meeger and Mc-Minger, soldier boys who deserted from the Arcadia balloon school on Nov. 20th, were captured near Roberts' camp on Sunday by officers from the army post.

The young men, it is claimed, have been living in the canyons and nearby recesses of the mountains, obtaining their food by robbing campers. They are suspected of having done much pilfering about this section and several robberies committed here may be traced to them.

The capture was effected by surrounding the men in their camp, Marshal Udell proceeding up the Mount Wilson trail and officers from the camp up the wagon road to Wilson's Peak, and then down the trail to the quarter-way house, where they closed in on them and marched them to the camp.

CLASSES IN FRENCH.

Miss Freese who has been conducting classes in French at the residence of Mrs. Robert Mitchell, announces that in the future the classes will be held in the kindergarten building, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Two other classes for more advanced pupils will also be held. Terms: $4 per month. For particulars phone Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Red 123.

Mrs. B. F. Culver and daughter, Miss Agnes Culver, who have been spending several months in Berkeley, arrived home last week.

D. G. Stephens has invented a tow rope hitch for automobiles. A demonstration will be given at the Sierra Madre Garage a week from Saturday, December 6.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Beach and son, and Mrs. Ruby Torrance and Mr. W. J. Apple, recently from Elrose, Saskatchewan, Canada, arrived in Sierra Madre Saturday to spend the winter months here.

A SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR
BY EPISCOPAL LADIES

The Bazaar given by the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, which closed last Friday night, was a great success in every way. The various booths were well patronized. The dinner served was a culinary treat to all who partook of the "good eats." Much credit is due the members of the Woman's Guild, who officiated on the different committees.

The vaudeville show with the two-act skit met the hearty approval of all. The play, "Untangling Tony," selected for the occasion, although devoid of any deep plot or interesting theme, was, in spite of this drawback, whipped into a very presentable and clever tangle of comedy through the untiring efforts of the well-chosen cast and the efficient supervision of Miss H. Grace Williams. Mrs. Walter Wright Alley, who had the leading part as the chic chorus girl, displayed remarkable ability in her interpretation of this character. Miss Martha Shaw, as Gladys Mannering, a demure ingenue, brought down the house. Her characterization would have done credit to a professional. Miss Helen Williams, as Mildred Carrew, proved a charming and diplomatic widow, presenting her part in an able manner. Mrs. James Mannering, played by Miss Yerde M. D. Appleby, brought a charm to the atmosphere by her dignified and delightful mannerisms, as did Mrs. Harold Allen as Mrs. Addison Ray, whose difficult characterization of an anxious mother was presented in a truly clever manner. The character part of Mrs. Brown, played by Miss Edith Blumer, could not have had a better presentation. Her interpretation of the ignorant English woman, at one time slightly under the influence of liquor, caused many hearty laughs, but then, Miss Blumer is always letter perfect in her lines and in her ability to depict the character allotted her. Although playing a minor part as Thompson, the butler, E. P. Rhodes surely was a scream in his character of a slow-going obsequious servant. Franklin Wright as Anthony Ray, exhibited great possibilities along histrionic lines and did unusually well. His friend, Fenwick Van Alsten, played by C. Hall Perry, was characterized in an able and painstaking manner and added much to the support of this company of clever amateur performers.

The dance after the performance on Friday night was well attended by the dancing set of this and near-by towns.

During the play music was furnished by Miss Esther and Mr. William Olsen and Stafford Sadler. Mr. Stafford Sadler showed remarkable ability in his saxophone solos, which filled in a number on the vaudeville program. Several local hits by a black faced comedian tickled the risibilities of the humorously inclined.

Mrs. Gertrude Maughlin has taken apartments in Los Angeles for the winter.

H. W. Sanders of East San Gabriel was calling on friends in Sierra Madre Monday.

Miss C. A. Carter of Honolulu has taken a cottage on Auburn Ave. and expects to remain for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Addis of Long Beach are located at 264 San Gabriel Court and will remain for an indefinite length of time.

BEING THE AUTHENTIC NARRATIVE OF A TREASURE DISCOVERED IN THE BAHAMA ISLANDS IN THE YEAR 1903—NOW FIRST GIVEN TO THE PUBLIC.

Richard Le Gallienne

COPYRIGHT BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY

"WAIT A MINUTE!"

Synopsis—The man who tell this story—call him the hero, for short—is visiting his friend, John Saunders, British official in Nassau, Bahama Islands. Charles Webster, a local merchant, completes the trio of friends. Conversation turning upon buried treasure, Saunders produces a written document purporting to be the death-bed statement of Henry P. Tobias, a successful pirate, made by him in 1859. It gives two spots where two millions and a half of treasure were buried by him and his companions. The conversation of the three friends is overheard by a pock-marked stranger. The document disappears. Saunders, however, has a copy. The hero, determined to seek the buried treasure, charts the auxiliary schooner Maggie Darling. The pock-marked man is taken on as a passenger for Spanish Wells. Negro Tom catches and cures a "sucking fish" as a mascot for the hero; it has the virtue of keeping off the ghost of the pirate who always guards pirate treasure. On the voyage somebody empties the gasoline tank and the hero starts things. He and the passenger clash. He lands the passenger, who leaves a manifesto bearing the signature, "Henry P. Tobias, Jr." With a new crew, the Maggie Darling sails and is passed by another schooner, the Susan B. The hero lands on Dead Men's Shoals. The "sucking fish" proves a mascot indeed and carries the hero through a fight, which is followed by several funerals. He searches for buried treasure on an old Tom falls into a pirates' cave. The cave contains the skeletons of two pirates and a massive chest—empty save for a few pieces of eight scattered on the bottom. The hero returns to Nassau and by good luck learns the location of Short Shift island. Webster buys the yawl flamingo, and he and the hero decide to search Short Shift island for the treasure.

There were far more blacks than whites down on Bay street, but there were nothing but blacks on every side.

The roads ran in every direction, and along them everywhere were figures of black women shuffling with burdens on their heads, or groups of girls, audaciously merry, most of them bonny, here and there almost a beauty. There were churches and dance halls and saloons—all radiating, so to say, a prosperous blackness.

At first the effect of the whole scene was a little sinister, even a little frightening. The strangeness of African jungle, was here, and one was a white man in it all alone among grinning savage faces. But for the figures about one being clothed, the illusion had been complete; but for that and the kind-hearted salutations from comely white-turbaned mamies which soon sprang up about me, and the groups of elfish children that laughingly blocked one's progress with requests—not in any weird African dialect but in excellent English—for "a copper, please."

This request was not above the maidenly dignity of quite big and buxom lasses. One of these, a really superb young creature, asked for "a copper, please," but with a saucy coquetry befitting her adolescence.

"I'll give you one if you'll tell me where the 'king' lives," said I.

"Ole King Coffee?" she asked, and then fell into a very agony of negro laughter. Recovering, she put her finger to her lips, suggesting silence, and said:

"Come along, I'll show you!"

And walking by my side, lithe as a young animal, she had soon brought me to a cabin much like the rest, though perhaps a little poorer looking. "Shh! There he is!" and she shook all over again with suppressed giggles.

I gave her a sixpence and told her to be a good girl. Then I advanced up a little strip of garden to where I had caught a glimpse of a venerable white-haired negro seated at the window, as if for exhibition, with a great open book in his hands. This he appeared to be reading with great solemnity, through enormous goggles, though I thought I caught a side-glance of his eye, as though he had taken a swift reconnoitering glance in my direction—a glance which apparently had but deepened his attention and increased the dignity of his demeanor.

Remembering that he was not merely royal but pious also, I made my salutation at once courtier-like and sanctimonious.

"Good day to your majesty," I said; "God's good, God looks after his servants."

"De Lord is merciful," he answered gravely; "God takes care of his children. Be seated, sar, and please excuse my not rising; my rheumatism is a sore affliction to me."

I was not long in getting to the subject of my visit. The old man listened to me with great composure, but with a marked accession of mysterious importance in his manner.

"It's true, sar," he said, when I had finished, "I could find it for you. I could find it for you, sure enough; and I'm de only man in all de islands dat could. But I should have to go wid you, and it's de Lord's will to keep me here in dis chair wid rheumatism. De rods has turned in dese old hands many a time, and I 'ave faith in de Lord dey would turn again—yes, I'd find it for you; sure enough. I'd find it if any man could—and it was de Lord's will. But mebbe I can see it for you widout moving from dis chair."

"Do you mean, brother, that the Lord has given you second sight?"

"Dat am it! Glory to his name, hal-lelujah!" he answered. "I look in a glass ball—so; and if de spirit helps me I can see clear as a picture far under de ground—far, far away over de sea. It's de Lord's truth, sar—blessed be his name!"

I asked him whether he would look into his crystal for me. With a burst of profanity, as unexpected as it was vivid, he cursed "dem boys" that had stolen from him a priceless crystal which once had belonged to his old royal mother, who, before him, had had the same gift of the spirit. But, he added—turning to a table by his side, and lifting from it a large cut-glass decanter of considerable capacity, though at present void of contents—that he had found that gazing into the large glass ball of its stopper produced almost equally good results at times.

First he asked me to be kind enough to shut the door.

We had to be very quiet, he declared; the spirit could work only in deep silence. And he asked me to be kind enough to close my eyes. Then I heard his voice muttering, in a strange tongue, a queer dark gobbling kind of words, which may have been ancient African spell-words, or sheer gibberish such as magicians in all times and places have employed to mystify their consultants.

I looked at him through the corner of my eye—as doubtless he had anticipated, for he was glaring with an air of inspired abstraction into the ball of the decanter stopper. So we sat silent for I suppose some ten minutes. Then I heard him give another deep sigh. Opening my eyes I saw him slowly shaking his head.

"De spirits don't seem communicable dis afternoon," he muttered tilting the decanter slightly on one side and observing it drearily.

"Do you think, your majesty," I asked with as serious a face as I could assume, "the spirits might work better—if the decanter were to be filled?"

"Mebbe, sar; mebbe. Spirits is curious things; dey need inspiration sometimes, just like ourselves."

"What kind of inspiration do you think gets the best results, your majesty?"

"Well, sar, I can't say as dey is very particular, but I've noticed dey do seem powerful 'tached to just plain good old Jamaica rum."

This He Appeared to Be Reading With Great Solemnity.

"They shall have it," I said.

I had noticed that there was a saloon a few yards away, so before many more minutes had passed I had been there and come back again, and the decanter stood ruddily filled, ready for the resumption of our seance. But before we began I of course accepted the seer's invitation to join him and the spirits in a friendly libation.

Then—I having closed my eyes—we began again, and it was astonishing with what rapidity the thick-coming pictures began to crowd upon that inner vision with which the Lord had endowed his faithful follower!

Of course I was inclined now to take the whole thing as an amusing imposture; but presently, watching his face and the curious "seeing" expression of his eyes, and noting the exactitude of one or two pictures, I began to feel that, however much he might be inventing or elaborating, there was some substratum of truth in what he was telling me.

The first pictures that came to him were merely pictures, though astonishingly clear ones, of Webster's boat, the Flamingo, of Webster himself, and of the men and the old dog Sailor; but in all this he might have been visualizing from actual knowledge. Yet the details were curiously exact. Presently his gaze becoming more fixed:

"I see you anchored under a little settlement. You are rowing ashore. Dere are little pathways running up among de coral rock, and a few white houses. Seems to be a forest; big trees—not like Nassau trees—and thick brush everywhere; all choked up so thick and dark, can't see nut'n. Wait a minute, dough. Dere seems to be old houses all sunk in and los', like old ruins. Can't see dem for de brush. And wait—Lord love you, sar, but I see afraid—I seem to see a big light coming up trough de brush from far under de ground—just like you see old rotten wood shining in de dark—deep, deep down. Didn't I tell you de Lord gave me eyes to see into de bowels of de earth?—It's de bowels of de earth for sure—all lit up and shining. Praise de Lord—it am de gold, for certain, all hidden away and shining dere under de ground—"

"Can't you see it closer, clearer?" I exclaimed involuntarily; "get some idea of the place it's in?"

The old man gazed with a renewed intensity.

"No," he said presently, and his disappointed tone seemed to me the best evidence yet of his truth, "I only see a little golden mist deep, deep down under de ground; now it is fading away. It's gone; I can only see de woods and de ruins again."

This brought his visions to an end. The spirits obstinately refused to make any more pictures, though the old man continued to gaze on in the decanter stopper for fully five minutes.

CHAPTER III.

In Which We Take Ship Once More.

The discovery which—through my friend the dealer in "marine curiosities"—I had made, or believed myself to have made, of the situation of Henry P. Tobias' second "pod" of treasure, fitted exactly with Charlie Webster's wishes for our trip, small stock as he affected to take in it at the moment.

"Short Shift island" lay a few miles to the northwest of Andros island. Now Andros is a great haunt of wild duck, not to speak of that more august bird, the flamingo. Attraction number one for the good Charlie. Then, though it is some hundred and fifty miles long and some fifty miles broad at its broadest, it has never yet, it is said, been entirely explored.

Its center is still a mystery. The natives declare it is haunted, or at all events inhabited by some strange people no one has yet approached close enough to see. You can see their houses, they say, from a distance, but as you approach them, they disappear. Here, therefore, seemed an excellent place for Tobias to take cover in. Charlie's duck-shooting preserves, endless mari lakes islanded with mangrove copes, lay on the fringe of this mysterious region. So Andros was plainly marked out for our destination.

Sailor had watched his master getting his guns ready for some days, and, doubtless, memories stirred in him of Scotch moors they had shot over together. He raised his head to the night wind and sniffed impatiently, as though he already scented the wild duck on Andros island. He was impatient, like the rest of us, because, though it was an hour past sailing-time, we had still to collect two of the crew. The two loiterers turned up at last and, all preliminaries being at length disposed of, we threw off the mooring ropes and presently there was heard that most exhilarating of sounds to anyone who loves seafaring, the rippling of the ropes through the blocks as our mainsail began to rise up high against the moon which was beginning to look out over the huge block of the Colonial hotel, the sea wall of which ran along as far as our mooring. A few lights in its windows here and there broke the blank darkness of its facade, glimmering through the avenues of royal palms. I am thus explicit because of something that presently happened and which stayed the mainsail in its rippling ascent.

A tall figure was running along the sea wall from the direction of the hotel, calling out, a little breathlessly, in a rich young voice as it ran:

"Wait a minute there, you fellows! Wait a minute!"

We were already moving, parallel with the wall, and at least twelve feet away from it, by the time the figure—that of a tall boy, cowboy-hatted and picturesque outlined in the half light—stopped just ahead of us. He raised something that looked like a bag in his right hand, calling out "Catch" as he did so; and, a moment after, before a word could be spoken, he took a flying leap and landed amongst us, plump in the cockpit and was clutching first one of us and then the other, by Kove's balance.

"Did it, by Jove!" he exclaimed in a beautiful English accent, and then started laughing as only absurd devil youngsters can.

"Forgive me!" he said, as soon as he could get his breath, "but I had to do it. Heaven knows what the old man will say!"

"You're something of a long jump!" said Charlie.

"Oh! I have done my twenty-two and an eighth on a broad running jump, but I had no chance for a run there," answered the lad, carelessly.

"But suppose you'd hit the water instead of the deck?"

"What of it? Can't one swim?"

"I guess you're all right, young man," said Charlie, softened; "but . . . well, we're not taking passengers."

The words had a familiar sound. They were the very ones I had used to Tobias, as he stood with his hand on the gunwale of the Maggie Darling. His gaze becoming more fixed:

Before a Word Could Be Spoken, He Took a Flying Leap.

I rapidly conveyed the coincidence—and the difference—to Charlie. It struck me as odd, I'll admit, that our second start, in this respect, should be so like the first. Meanwhile, the young man was answering, or rather pleading, in a boyish way:

"Don't call me a passenger; I'll help work the boat. I'll tell the truth. I heard—never mind how—about your trip, and I'm just nutty about buried treasure. Come, be a sport. We can let the old guy know, somehow . . . and it won't kill him to tear his hair for a day or two. He knows I can take care of myself."

"Well!" said Charlie, after thinking awhile in his slow way, "we'll think it over. You can come along till the morning. Then I can get a good look at you. If I don't like your looks we'll still be able to put you off at West End; and if I do—well—right-ho! Now, boys," he shouted, "go ahead with the sails."

Once more there was that rippling of the ropes through the blocks, as our mainsail rose up high against the moon and filled proudly with the steady northeast breeze we had been waiting for.

So two or three hours went by, as we plunged on, to the seething sound of the water, and the singing of our sails, and all the various rumor of wind and sea. After all, it was a good music to sleep to, and for all my scorn of sleeping landmen, an irresistible drowsiness stretched me out on the roof of the little cabin, wonderfully rocked into forgetfulness.

My nap came to an end suddenly, as though some one had flung me out through a door of blue and gold into a new-born world. There was the sun rising, the moon still on duty, and the morning star divinely naked in the heaven.

And there was Charlie, his broad face beaming with boyish happiness, and something like a fatherly gentleness in his eyes, as he watched his companion at the tiller, whom, for a half-asleep moment of waking, I couldn't account for, till our start all came back to me, when I realized that it was our young scapegrace of overnight. Charlie and he evidently were on the best of terms already.

Old Tom had been busy with breakfast and soon the smells of coffee and freshly made "Johnny-cake" and frying bacon competed not unsuccessfully with the various fragrances of the morning.

Breakfast over, Charlie filled his pipe, assuming, as he did so, a judicial aspect. I filled mine and our young friend followed suit by taking a silver cigarette case from his pocket and striking a match on the leg of his khaki knickerbockers with a professional air.

"All set?" asked Charlie, and, after a slight pause, he went on:

"Now, young man, you can see we are nearing the end of the island. Another half-mile will bring us to West End. Whether we put you ashore there, or take you along, depends on your answers to my questions."

The unexpected passenger proves interesting, even though the treasure seekers are strangely blind.

CATTAILS HAVE FOOD VALUE

Investigation Has Shown Them to Contain a Satisfactory Amount of Needed Protein.

Flour from the cattails of the swamps has been found by the plant chemical laboratory at Washington to contain about the same amount of protein as rice and corn flours, with somewhat less fat than wheat flour, and it was regarded as a promising substitute with wheat flour to the extent of 10 to 20 per cent. In the investigation, of which he has given an account in the Scientific Monthly, Prof. P. W. Claassen tried the flour in several ways, both as part substitute with wheat flour in baking and as corn-starch substitute for puddings. Biscuits containing 50 and even 100 per cent of this flour proved to be palatable, not very different from those of wheat flour alone, while the puddings had an agreeable flavor and were satisfactory. The flour material is obtained from the large underground rootstalks or rhizomes, of which it forms a starch core three-eighths to one-half inch in diameter. The dried rhizomes from an acre of cattails were shown to equal 10,792 pounds, and the core substance, passed through a meat grinder and sifted, yielded fine flour at the rate of 5,500 pounds per acre. Many thousands acres of cattail marshes are included in the 139,855 square miles of swamp land of the United States.

TOO SHORT TO DO UP AND STILL FALLING

A little "Danderine" stops your hair coming out and doubles its beauty.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Help your hair to grow strong, thick and long and become soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant.—Adv.

Wasn't It a Pity?

Little Anne was very fond of ripe olives, and her mother had to watch her to see that she did not indulge too freely. One day there was company, and Anne managed to have the olive dish stopped near her plate.

After the dinner her mother pointed to the pile of pits on Anne's plate and asked:

"How could you make such a pig of yourself? I should think you would be ashamed to see so many pits, and ashamed to have others see them."

Anne hung her head and replied: "I was. That's the reason I threw all the rest of them on the floor."

It is said that philosophy is the liver pill of life. Others say that it is the blue mass of resignation.

Help That Bad Back!

Why be miserable with a "bad back?" It's time you found out what is wrong! Kidney weakness often causes much suffering from backache, lameness, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities. Neglected, it may lead to dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease, but if taken in time it is usually easily corrected by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands.

An Idaho Case

Mrs. H. Peterson, St. Anthony, Idaho, says: "I had a bad attack of kidney trouble. I was miserable with a dull ache in my back and through my limbs. I felt lame and sore all over. My kidneys didn't act right and caused me much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me from the start and soon rid me of the trouble entirely."

Shorthorns in America 133 Years

The first purebred Shorthorn cattle were brought to the United States in 1826, a small shipment being imported from England to Virginia that year. The Shorthorn has had more to do with the improvement of cattle in this country than any other breed—probably than all other breeds. It is the combined beef and milking quality of the Shorthorn that has made the profit on the farms, plantations and ranches. It pays to use Short-horn bulls. SIMPLY LEFT IT TO TOM Mether Shrewdly Reasoned That She Needn't Worry About Time to Give Medicine.

There is a Philadelphia mother who is forgetful and knows it, but who is clever enough to discount this failing, as a rule. Not long ago her small son was rather indisposed, and the doctor ordered a medicine to be given at three-hour intervals.

“Did you give Tom his medicine regularly?” the husband and father asked hopefully upon his return home in the evening.

“Didn't miss a time,” the mother responded with satisfaction.

“How in the world did you ever think of it?” the man asked.

“I didn't; but it was easy. I just told Tom this morning at what hours he was to take the medicine, and half an hour before each time he began walling that he didn't want to take it.”

Weighty Subject.

They had been discussing art, and the young man was getting slightly tired of the subject.

“I remember one picture that brought tears to my eyes, however,” he continued.

“Ah, it was some pathetic subject,” murmured the damsel, who took herself seriously.

“As a matter of fact I don't know what the subject was, but I happened to be sitting under a pretty heavy picture when the cord broke and it came down on my head.”

“KILL-JOYS”

Constipation, Headache, Colds, Biliousness ended with “Cascarets”

Nothing takes the joy out of life quicker than a disordered liver or waste-clogged bowels. Don't stay sick, bilious, headachy, constipated. Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your breath bad and stomach sour. Why not spend a few cents for a box of Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest laxative-cathartic you ever experienced? Cascarets never gripe, sicken or inconvenience one like Salts, Oil, Calomel or harsh pills. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

“Yes, ma'am,” said the boy.

“Is it the motion going down?”

“No, ma'am.”

“The motion going up?”

“No, ma'am.”

“Is it the stopping that does it?”

“No, ma'am.”

“Then what is it?”

“Answering questions, ma'am.—Everybody's.”

ROMANCE VS. RICE

By ADELAID R. KEMP.

Anne Preston boarded the crowded Pullman of a through train with an expression of absolute weariness on her pretty face. It was a warm day and she settled herself for her long journey unmoved by the monotonous murmur of voices drifting about her, and thinking only of the visit ahead. Tired from her hard winter in the office, she felt glad indeed she had resisted the pleading of the other girls to spend her three weeks' vacation with them at a fashionable seaside resort. With closed eyes she remembered gratefully the kind letter from dear Aunt Maria inviting her down to the old home in Maine, where she had spent such happy summers when she was a little girl.

It was late in the afternoon when the train came to her station. Alighting, the first thing on which her eyes fell was an old surrey with its fringed top and a plump horse in the shafts. Coming toward her was a tall, well-built young man with eyes gray, serene, and strangely compelling, the look of strength in his mouth and chin and in the square swing of his shoulders. Could this be Aunt Maria's adopted son, the merry, freckled-faced lad with whom she had spent such happy days fishing and picking berries?

With outstretched hand and a slow, friendly smile, he met her.

“You are little Anne. I should have known you anywhere,” he said.

“Why?” she exclaimed, his calm, deep voice causing an odd flutter in her heart, “you must be David.”

As they jogged along the country road they were soon chatting merrily together, quickly bridging over the years since they last met, as is the way of youth.

“Oh!” she said, “was anything ever so lovely? Why have I stayed away so long?”

David looked at her thoughtfully. “I don't know,” he said slowly. “But I hope you won't do it again.”

On the brow of the hill overlooking the sea stood the lovely old farmhouse. White paint gleamed on every board and shutter. Eaves, window shutters and doors were green, and there also, as Anne had remembered, were the geraniums blending with the hollyhocks. As they drove up Aunt Maria's motherly figure rose from the wicker rocker on the porch and with a kind, ruddy face beaming with affection, came to meet her. Anne felt a tightening at her throat, and with a sudden mist blurring her eyes she hid her face in the ample bosom.

Long hours on the beach or in the hammock among the pines gave splendid results, and the flush of health returned to Anne's cheeks, the sparkle to her brown eyes. With it all a spirit of happiness and content filled her whole being. One morning she entered the kitchen at an earlier hour than usual, to find it deserted. A few dishes at the end of the table gave evidence that the men had finished their breakfast. But the fire was low and an unusual air of desolation seemed to pervade the atmosphere. Anne quickly ran upstairs to Aunt Maria's room, only to find that kind-hearted soul stricken with a severe headache and unable to dress.

“Oh, auntie, why ever didn't you call me?” exclaimed Anne, laying her cool little fingers on the aching brow.

“You mustn't worry, dearie. I'll soon be better,” answered Aunt Maria. “If I could only sleep a short time. But there is so much to be done downstairs.”

“Auntie,” said Anne, with determination, “I can do everything if you will tell me what to get for dinner. And then you can take a good rest and feel all right by afternoon.”

Aunt Maria, with a relieved sigh, gave a few directions, adding at the last, “and David loves rice pudding. So you can make a big one, and he can have it for supper, too.”

It might have been two hours later that David, returning to the house as was his habit for a little lunch, heard a queer, choking noise in the kitchen. Hurriedly entering, he saw a slight figure huddled on the old sofa.

“Why, little Anne,” he said, hurrying to her side, “what has happened?” For a moment she lifted her tear-stained face and glancing despairingly toward the stove, sobbed: “Rice.”

David looked wonderingly in the same direction. “I don't understand,” he said. Anne's face was hidden on his broad shoulder now and he held her close.

“Why! Why!” she stammered in muffled tones. “Auntie asked me to make you a rice pudding—a big one. And I opened her new five-pound package and put it to soak—and, oh, dear!” she was overcome now and could say no more. A look of understanding came suddenly to David's face. Over on the stove were kettles of rice, little kettles, big kettles, even the dishpan had been called into service. He drew one long breath and then his peals of laughter could be heard in the attic. Anne looked up indignantly, and tried to draw away.

It was at this juncture Aunt Maria appeared in the doorway, her headache bandage perched on one ear, bewilderment in her eyes. On the old sofa sat her help blissfully unconscious of having undone or dinner to be cooked. Late in the autumn, when they started on a happy wedding journey, David picked a few tiny particles from the folds of his wife's dainty suit.

“Look, little Anne,” he said, “shall we save these for a pudding?”

AS TO WANTING AND GETTING

Harvard University Head Tells Good Story With a Moral That Is Easy to Understand.

There is a story told in Boston which ought to spur on Harvard graduates in their efforts to obtain the Harvard endowment fund. President Lowell and a business man were talking over the progress of the campaign.

“I know how much you are asking for,” said the business man, “but how much do you really want?”

“Well,” President Lowell answered with a slight twinkle, “I am like the little girl who went to the butcher's for her mother. She stood by the counter until it came her turn and the butcher said, ‘What do you want, little girl?’

“‘I want a limousine,’ said the little girl, ‘but mother wants 10 cents’ worth of liver.’”

Clever Strategy.

A farmer, whose watermelon patch had been the object of several raids by passing motorists, secured immunity by posting the following sign conspicuously near the roadside: “Warning: Six of these melons are shot full of strychnine and nobody but me knows which ones they are!”

“Carpet-Bagger.”

It is said that the term “carpet-bagger” was first applied to political adventurers in America. It was designed to describe a needy political adventurer who wanders over the country pandering to the prejudices of the ignorant in order to try to get into office. He was so called because he was regarded as having only enough property to fill a carpet bag.

Cost of Politeness.

“Politeness costs nothing.” “That's a mistake,” replied the man who does not articulate well. “Every time I say ‘please’ to the telephone operator it costs valuable time because I can't manage to keep it from sounding to the operator like ‘three.’”

Trying to Please.

“Nothing but iron water.”

Save the Babies

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. There can be no danger in the use of Castoria if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher as it contains no opiates or narcotics of any kind.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Peace Stamps.

President Wilson will soon have the privilege of seeing his own portrait on a postage stamp! Not a United States stamp, however, for the pictures of living persons do not appear on this country's adhesives. But there is no law which forbids a foreign country from thus honoring a living American—and the peace stamps in preparation in Uruguay—it is understood they already have been issued—bear the portraits of President Wilson, President Poincaré of France, the kings of England, Belgium and Italy, and portraits of other rulers of countries associated in the war against Germany. This set will be highly prized by philatelists.—Kent B. Stiles in Boys' Life.

Making a Hit.

“Well, he's himself, anyhow. Ain't giving no imitations.”

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidneys.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

ORDINANCE NO. 239

AN ORDINANCE OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE LICENSING AND REGULATING CERTAIN KINDS OF BUSINESS CARRIED ON IN SAID CITY AND FIXING A PENALTY FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF, AND REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 208 OF SAID CITY AND ALL OTHER ORDINANCES AND PARTS OF ORDINANCES OF SAID CITY IN CONFLICT THEREWITH.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, whether as principal or agent, owner or employee, either for himself or any other person, or for any body, corporate or otherwise, or as an officer of any corporation, to commence or carry on within the corporate limits of the City of Sierra Madre any business, trade, calling, profession, or occupation in this Ordinance specified without having first procured a license from said City so to do, and each and every day or fractional part of a day that said business, trade, calling, profession or occupation in this Ordinance specified is conducted or carried on without such license shall constitute a violation of this Ordinance; and any person who shall for himself or for any other person or persons or for any body, corporate or otherwise, commence or carry on such business, trade, calling, profession or occupation aforesaid, without first having procured such license, shall, for each violation of the Ordinance be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars nor less than Three ($3.00) Dollars, or imprisoned for a term not exceeding fifty (50) days in the City Jail of the City of Sierra Madre, or shall be punished by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, and the amount of such license shall be deemed a debt due to said City of Sierra Madre, and such person shall be liable to an action in the name of the City of Sierra Madre in any court of competent jurisdiction, for the amount of the license of such business, trade, calling, profession or occupation, as he shall or they may have engaged in, with costs of suit; and in addition thereto, a penalty of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars must be added to the judgment as costs to be collected from the defendant or defendants.

SECTION 2. DUTIES OF CITY CLERK. It shall be the duty of the City Clerk to prepare and issue a license under this Ordinance for every person liable to pay a license thereunder, duly signed by the President of the Board of Trustees, and the City Clerk, and attested with the city seal, and to state in each license the amount thereof, the period of time covered thereby, the name of the person, firm or corporation for whom issued, the business, trade, calling, profession or occupation licensed, and the location or place of business where such business, trade, calling, profession or occupation is to be carried on, and the City Clerk shall deliver such license to the City Tax and License Collector for collection taking his receipt for the same, and the City Clerk shall report to the Board of Trustees at its first meeting in each month the amount of such licenses so delivered to the City Tax and License Collector during the previous month.

In no case shall any mistake by the City Clerk in stating the amount of a license prevent or prejudice the collection for the City of what shall be actually due, with all costs, against anyone for carrying on said business without a license, or refusing to pay the license fees specified herein.

SECTION 3. DUTIES OF CITY TAX AND LICENSE COLLECTOR AND FURTHER OF CITY CLERK.

The City Tax and License Collector shall proceed at once to collect such licenses and shall on or before the first Monday in each month deliver to the City Clerk all licenses remaining unpaid for the previous month, and also a list of all persons whom he believes not to be on the license list, and who should be charged with the payment of license; and he shall pay over to the City Treasurer all licenses collected by him in said month, taking the City Treasurer's receipt therefor in duplicate, one of which receipts he shall file with the City Clerk, and said City Tax and License Collector shall report the amount of licenses collected by him, together with the amount delinquent, to the Board of Trustees at its first meeting in each month.

It shall be the duty of the City Clerk, immediately after the unpaid delinquent licenses have been delivered to him, to add the penalty on the same hereinafter provided for.

SECTION 4. PAYMENTS TO BE IN ADVANCE. All licenses shall be paid in advance in the legal currency of the United States, at the office of the City Tax and License Collector.

SECTION 4½. SEPARATE LI-

CENSES WHEN REQUIRED. A separate license must be obtained for each branch establishment or separate place of business in which the trade, calling, profession or occupation is carried on, and each license shall authorize the party obtaining it to carry on, pursue or conduct only that trade, calling, profession or occupation described in such license, and only at the location or place of business which is indicated thereby.

SECTION 5. TIME OF PAYMENT AND PENALTY WHEN NOT SO PAID.

The monthly license in this ordinance provided shall be due and payable to the City on the first of each month in advance, from all persons who have for the previous month been licensed to carry on the same trade, calling, profession or occupation, and from all persons who have not been previously licensed for the same trade, calling, profession or occupation, the license shall be due and payable, and must be procured by such persons before commencing to carry on such trade, calling, profession or occupation.

The quarterly license in this ordinance provided shall be due and payable to the city on the first days of January, April, July and October, and all such licenses shall expire with the last days of March, June, September and December of each year, but the first quarterly license issued to any person, as herein provided, shall be issued for the unexpired portion of such quarter, and a proportionate amount shall be charged for the same for such unexpired portion of such quarter.

The weekly license in this ordinance provided shall be due and payable to the city on the Monday of each week in advance.

The daily licenses in this ordinance provided shall be due and payable to the City each day in advance.

The annual licenses in this Ordinance provided shall be due and payable to the city at the times specified therein, respectively, or when not so specified, on the first day of January of each year.

A penalty of twenty-five (25) cents shall be added to each license which shall remain unpaid at the end of the calendar month in which such license becomes due, and upon receiving such delinquent licenses, with such penalty added, from the City Clerk, it shall thereupon be the duty of the City Tax and License Collector to collect such licenses and penalty in addition to the amount of license fixed in this Ordinance.

SECTION 6. POSTING AND EXHIBITING LICENSE. Every person, firm or corporation having a license under the provisions of this Ordinance and carrying on a business, trade, calling, profession or occupation, at a particular place of business, shall keep such license posted and exhibited while in force in some conspicuous part of said place of business. Every peddler of goods, wares or merchandise shall carry his license with him at all times while engaged in peddling.

All persons, firms or corporations having a license shall produce or exhibit the same when applying for a renewal and whenever requested to do so by the City Tax and License Collector or any police officer of said City.

SECTION 7. POLICE POWERS OF CITY TAX AND LICENSE COLLECTOR.

The City Tax and License Collector and all police officers of said City shall have and exercise the power, first, to make arrests for the violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance; second, to enter, free of charge, any place of business for which a license is required and provided, and to demand the exhibition of such license for the current term for any person engaged or employed in the transaction of such business; and if any person shall then and there fail to exhibit such license, such person shall be liable to the penalty provided in Section 1 of this Ordinance.

It is hereby made the duty of the City Tax and License Collector to cause complaints to be filed against all persons violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance.

SECTION 8. CUMULATIVE REMEDY. The conviction and punishment of any person for transacting any business, trade, calling, profession or occupation without license shall not excuse or exempt such person from the payment of any license due or unpaid at the time of such conviction, and nothing contained herein shall prevent a criminal prosecution for any violation of the provisions of this Ordinance.

SECTION 9. "PERSON" OR "PERSONS" DEFINED. When the word "person," or the word "persons" is used in this Ordinance, referring to those liable to pay license or tax, the same are, and each is, intended and shall be construed to mean and include every person, firm, association or corporation conducting or carrying on the business, trade, calling or occupation for which such license must be procured.

SECTION 10. RATES. The rates of licenses for the business, trades, callings, professions and occupations hereinafter named, shall be, and the same are, hereby fixed and established for and within the City of Sierra Madre according to the following schedule, and the same shall be paid by all persons engaged in such businesses, trades, callings, professions or occupations as follows, to-wit:

SECTION 11. ADVERTISING. For every person carrying on the business of advertising by posting, sticking, tacking, affixing or painting bills or signs to or upon posts, fences, bill boards, advertising sign boards, buildings or other structures, or the business of advertising by distributing posters, dodgers, hand bills, samples or printed advertisements of any kind, when not in conjunction with carrying on any store or fixed place of business in the City of Sierra Madre, or for the advertising of churches, lodges, charitable or educational societies, public organizations, political parties or notices prescribed by law, $25.00 per year or $5.00 per day.

For the purposes of this section the expression "carrying on the business" is defined to be, and is construed to mean the doing or performing of any act or series of acts of advertising by any means or in any manner in this section specified, or the doing or performing of any act or series of acts of posting, sticking, tacking, affixing or painting bills or signs to or upon posts, fences, bill boards, advertising sign boards, buildings or other structures; or of displaying advertising thereon.

SECTION 12. AUCTIONS. For every person who sells any goods, wares or merchandise by public auction, $5.00 per day.

No license shall be required for selling any goods at public sale belonging to the United States or the State of California or for the sale of property by virtue of process issued by any state or Federal Court or for the bona fide sale of household goods, live stock or farming implements at the domicile of the owner of such property.

SECTION 13. ASTROLOGERS, PALMISTS, PHRENOLOGISTS, ETC.

For every person who carries on, practices or professes to practice the business or art of astrology, palmistry, phrenology, card reading, fortune telling, cartomancy, clairvoyance, clairaudience, crystal gazing, hypnotism, mediumship, prophecy, augury, divination, magic or necromancy, and who demands or receives a fee for the practice, exercise or exhibition of his art therein or who gives an exhibition thereof at any place where an admission fee is charged, $10.00 per day.

SECTION 14. SOLICITING ORDERS. For every person conducting or carrying on the business of soliciting orders for paintings, pictures, portraits, photographs, or orders for any clothing, jewelry, gent's furnishings, boots, shoes or wearing apparel of any kind, by samples or otherwise, or for selling or distributing coupons or certificates, purporting to be of commercial value, or orders for the sale of any kind of goods, wares or merchandise, except food products, feed, fuel and furniture, when not in conjunction with carrying on any store or fixed place of business in the City of Sierra Madre, $5.00 per day; provided, that no license shall be required from any person whose business is limited to the sale of goods, wares or merchandise at wholesale or to the soliciting of orders for the same at wholesale.

SECTION 15. CIRCUS. For every person conducting, managing or carrying on a circus or a tent show or performance of any kind under canvas, or a trained animal show or exhibition not in a building or permanent structure where two or more persons are employed, $25.00 per day.

SECTION 16. MEDICINE MAN. For every person carrying on the business of dealing in medicine other than in a regularly established drug store, or peddling the same, or treating diseases of the human body, who calls attention to his wares or method of treatment or advertises the same by the use of music, entertainment, speech or other device, the sum of $10.00 per day.

SECTION 17. STREET PEDDLERS. For conducting any street stand for the selling of any goods, wares or merchandise on any portion of the public streets within the City of Sierra Madre $1.00 per month, provided that no license shall be issued for any such stand until a permit has been first obtained from the Board of Trustees, and that the application for such permit must be accompanied by the written consent of the owner or occupant of the premises abutting immediately upon that portion of the street which the applicant desires to use; and further provided that the said Board of Trustees shall have the right to grant or refuse such permit under this Section in its discretion.

SECTION 18. BOWLING ALLEY. For every person, firm or corporation managing or carrying on a bowling alley, boxball alley or a similar business, $1.00 per quarter for each alley, provided that such bowling alley or boxball alley shall be kept closed from 12 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock

A. M. of the next day and on Sundays as hereinafter provided, and provided further that no license shall be issued under this section until the Board of Trustees shall have first issued a permit therefor, and that the said Board of Trustees shall have the right to grant or refuse such permit under this section in its discretion, and that said permit or license shall not be transferred without the consent of said Board of Trustees first obtained.

SECTION 19. BALL OR RING THROWING OR CONJURING EXHIBITION.

For every person engaged in carrying on the business of a ring thrower or knife throwing rack, or ball throwing or conjuring exhibition, $2.00 per day.

SECTION 20. AUTOMOBILE OR VEHICLE TRANSPORTATION FOR FREIGHT.

For every person in the City of Sierra Madre running any cart, dray, express wagon, automobile or vehicle for the transportation or delivery of freight or goods for hire, a quarterly license for each cart, dray, express wagon, automobile or other vehicle in accordance with the following schedule.

For each automobile truck not to exceed 2 tons capacity $3.00.

For each automobile truck exceeding 2 tons capacity and not exceeding 4 tons capacity, $4.00.

For each automobile truck exceeding 4 tons capacity, $6.00.

For each horse drawn vehicle so engaged, $1.00 per quarter.

SECTION 21. MERRY-GO-ROUND, SHOOTING GALLERY, ETC.

For every person, firm or corporation conducting or carrying on a merry-go-round, shooting gallery, skating rink or any similar enterprise for furnishing amusement not otherwise mentioned herein, $5.00 per month, provided that none of said business mentioned herein shall be licensed until the Board of Trustees shall have issued a permit therefor, and that the said Board of Trustees shall have the right to grant or refuse such permit under this Section in its discretion.

SECTION 22. FOOT PEDDLER.

For every person conducting or carrying on the business of peddling any kind of goods, wares or merchandise, afoot when not in conjunction with a fixed place of business in the City of Sierra Madre, $5.00 per day.

SECTION 23. PEDDLING FRUIT, VEGETABLES, ETC., BY WAGON OR VEHICLE.

Every person conducting or carrying on the business of peddling fruit, vegetables, food products, or any kind of goods wares or merchandise, not otherwise specified herein from a wagon or vehicle on a regular route and at fixed intervals, when not in conjunction with a fixed place of business in the City of Sierra Madre, for each wagon $12.00 per annum, and when not on a regular route and at fixed intervals, $2.00 per day; provided that a person holding a license under this section shall not be permitted to remain in or permanently occupy any one place upon the public streets, but shall have only the right under such license to travel along the street in the usual and customary manner in order to carry on such business.

SECTION 24. PEDDLING GASOLINE OR OTHER PETROLEUM PRODUCTS BY WAGON OR VEHICLE.

For every person conducting or carrying on the business of peddling, selling or delivering gasoline, kerosene, refined oil or petroleum products of any kind from a wagon or vehicle, when not in conjunction with a fixed place of business in said City of Sierra Madre, for each wagon $25.00 semi-annually; provided that a person holding a license under this section shall not be permitted to remain in or permanently occupy any one place upon the public streets, but shall have only the right under such license to travel along the street in the usual and customary manner in order to carry on such business.

SECTION 25. TRANSIENT MERCHANT.

For every person doing business as a transient merchant therein, which shall include all merchants doing business at a fixed place of business for a period of less than thirty (30) consecutive days, $5.00 per day.

SECTION 26. JUNK DEALER.

For every person conducting, managing or carrying on the business of junk dealer or the business of junk collector for himself or any other person, $12.00 per year or $4.00 per day.

SECTION 27. CONTRACTORS, PLUMBERS, ELECTRICIANS, ETC.

For every person conducting or carrying on the business of contractor, constructing or repairing buildings, plastering, painting, cement, stone or other construction work, or the business of plumbing, gas fitting, tinning, electric wiring, or doing any contracting or construction work, or any plumbing, gas fitting, tinning or electric wiring work for compensation or hire in the City of Sierra Madre, the license shall be $3.00 per quarter.

SECTION 28. CARNIVAL, STREET FAIR OR FIESTA.

For every person conducting, managing or carrying on a carnival, street fair or fiesta, the license shall be $10.00 per day, provided that the same shall be granted only upon written application therefor to the Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre, which application shall specify the length of time, locations and whether upon public or private property, purposes for which the funds derived from the same are to be used, and full particulars concerning such enterprise, and said Board of Trustees may grant or deny said application in its discretion, and upon granting the same, may impose such conditions as it may deem best for the public welfare.

SECTION 29. BILLIARD HALL OR POOL ROOM.

For every person, firm or corporation conducting, managing or carrying on any billiard hall or pool room, or both, the sum of $4.00 per quarter; provided that such billiard hall or pool room shall be kept closed from 12 o'clock midnight until 6 o'clock A. M. of each day, and that minors under 18 years of age shall not be allowed to be present or frequent any such billiard hall or pool room; and provided further that no license shall be issued under this Section until the Board of Trustees shall have first issued a permit therefor, and that the said Board of Trustees shall have the right to grant or refuse such permit under this Section in its discretion, and that said permit or license shall not be transferred without the consent of said Board of Trustees first obtained.

SECTION 30. LAUNDRY.

For every person, firm, association, company or corporation conducting or carrying on the business of running a laundry wagon or vehicle or a laundry route in said city, the license tax shall be for each wagon or vehicle $12.00 per year.

SECTION 31. AUTOMOBILES OR VEHICLES FOR PASSENGERS.

For every person, firm or corporation carrying passengers for hire by automobile or vehicle other than a street car, for each such automobile or vehicle $12.00 per year.

SECTION 32. REAL ESTATE OR INSURANCE AGENTS.

For every person carrying on the business of real estate or insurance agent, or of making or procuring loans on commission, in the City of Sierra Madre, $12.00 per year.

SECTION 33. MILK AND THE REGULATION OF THE SALE THEREOF.

No person, firm or corporation shall bring into or receive any or cause to be brought into, or receive in the City of Sierra Madre, for sale, delivery or exchange, or sell, deliver or exchange, or cause or offer to sell, deliver or exchange, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale, delivery or exchange in said City any milk, who shall not have first obtained a license so to do from the Tax and License Collector of said City as in this section provided, and it shall be unlawful for any person, either personally or through his or its agents, servants or employees to violate or fail in any respect to obey, conform to and abide by any or all of the provisions, regulations or requirements of this section.

Any person, firm or corporation desiring to obtain a license under this Section shall make a written application therefor to the Health Officer of said City. Such application shall set forth the residence or principal place of business of said applicant, the number of cows to be used by him for the purpose specified in this Section and the place or places where such cows are kept, and such milk handled, bottled or stored for the purpose of supplying same to consumers, and a request to the Health Officer to make the necessary examination and inspection to determine whether or not the applicant is complying with all the laws, rules and regulations of the State of California, of the County of Los Angeles, and of the various departments, commissions, bureaus and officers thereof, relating to carrying on the milk or dairy business. It shall be the duty of such Health Officer to make such examination and inspection upon the payment of a fee of $1.00 therefor if such inspection is to be made within the City of Sierra Madre, or upon the payment of a fee of $5.00 if to be made without the City of Sierra Madre. And thereupon such license shall be issued upon the payment of a license tax of $5.00 per year for the sale or delivery of milk from more than one cow and not exceeding four cows, and upon the payment of $12.00 per year for the sale or furnishing of milk from more than four cows; provided however, that any license issued under this Section may be revoked by the Board of Trustees at any time if said Board is satisfied that any of the conditions under which the same were granted have been violated since the same was issued or that applicant was not entitled to the same when it was issued; provided however, that no license shall be revoked without notice to the holder thereof giving an opportunity to appear before the Board in his own behalf, and no part of such fees or license tax shall be returned upon such revocation.

When the license of any person has been revoked for any cause under this Section no new or other license shall be granted to the same person except upon an application therefor made to the Board of Trustees and a showing satisfactory to said Board that the cause or complaint upon which the former license was revoked has been removed.

It shall be the duty of every person, firm or corporation holding a license under this Section to carry on such business at all times in strict conformity with all the rules, laws and regulations in relation thereto of the State of California and of the County of Los Angeles.

SECTION 34. LICENSE ON ALL BUSINESS NOT OTHERWISE SPECIFIED.

For every person, firm or corporation conducting or carrying on any business of any kind whatever not hereinbefore designated, or conducting or carrying on any business in any store or place where goods, wares or merchandise of any kind, nature or description are sold, $12.00 per year.

SECTION 35. GENERAL EXCEPTION.

Nothing in this Ordinance shall be construed as imposing a license tax on, or otherwise regulating or restricting foreign or interstate commerce, and any business or portion thereof which is embraced in the term "Interstate Commerce" or in the term "Foreign Commerce," is not made subject to a license by this Ordinance; and provided, further, that this Ordinance shall not be deemed to apply to the delivery of goods, wares or merchandise purchased elsewhere and delivered in said City of Sierra Madre, if no orders are taken or solicited of any kind is done in conjunction with making such delivery.

SECTION 36. REVOCATION OF LICENSES.

All licenses issued under this Ordinance, or any section thereof, are granted and accepted by all parties receiving licenses, with the express understanding that the Board of Trustees may revoke the same at any time if satisfied that any of the conditions of the license or terms of this Ordinance have been violated, or that the license was obtained by fraudulent representations, or that the holder of any such license is an unfit person to be trusted with the privilege granted by said license; provided, however, that no license shall be revoked without first giving the holder an opportunity to appear before the Board in his own behalf. On the revocation of the license, no part of the money in the hands of the City shall be returned, but such license fee shall be forfeited to the City. When a license of any person is revoked for any cause, no new or other license shall be granted to the same person within six months from the date of such revocation.

SECTION 37. CREDIT FOR UNEXPIRED LICENSE.

Any person taking out a license under this Ordinance, and holding any unexpired license heretofore issued by the City Clerk for the same business, shall upon surrender of such former license to the City Clerk be entitled to credit on such new license issued hereunder, for the pro rate amount paid for the unexpired portion of such former license.

SECTION 38. REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 208 AND OTHER ORDINANCES OF SAID CITY IN CONFLICT HEREWITH.

That Ordinance No. 208 of the City of Sierra Madre and all other Ordinances and parts of Ordinances of said City in conflict herewith be, and the same are hereby repealed.

SECTION 39. THE CITY CLERK SHALL CERTIFY TO THE PASSAGE OF THIS ORDINANCE.

The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance and shall cause the same to be published once in the Sierra Madre News, a weekly newspaper of general circulation published and circulated in said City, and thereupon and thereafter the same shall be in full force and effect on and after the first day of January, 1920.

Adopted and approved this 24th day to November, 1919.

(SEAL) ROBERT MITCHELL, President of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre.

Attest:
E. F. BALLOU,
City Clerk of the City of Sierra Madre.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,

Mrs. G. Galloway Duncan well known artist formerly of this place, but now of Pasadena, was a luncheon guest of Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst, on Monday.

On Sunday evening, Mrs. F. P. Sperry entertained with a waffle supper. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Letteau and Prof. and Mrs. Oscar Selling.

It is confidently expected that there will be a large attendance to hear Mrs. Ellen Wesson speak on "Home Relief" at the Woman's Club House tomorrow. Come and bring your friends, have tea and enjoy a good time.

On Friday evening, Dec. 5th, the ladies of the St. Rita's Church will give a card party with four valuable prizes. Later there will be dancing with good music and refreshments. Tickets at Woodson Jones store.

On Monday evening Miss Grace Cook attended a reception at the Shakespeare Club in Pasadena, which was given by the Teachers of Pasadena Schools for the new city superintendent, Dr. John Franklin West.

Because of Thanksgiving, low gas, making the new telephone book, a long city ordinance, a half page ad for the electric people, and being unable to get a printer we ask the indulgence of our readers this week, as a lot of good news has been crowded out.

Thanksgiving day was ushered in with a fine rain followed by snow that covered the mountains clear down to the city limits. The trails were all thronged with people from nearby towns anxious to see and feel the snow, which was several inches deep as near as the quarter-way house and was visible from here nearly all day.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Anna Foy of Pasadena and well known in Sierra Madre, has established an agency in Sierra Madre for the Parisian Dye Works, which makes a specialty of dry cleaning everything. Orders for work will be called for by phoning Black 42 during business hours or Green 79 after 4 o'clock.

PROUD GRANDPARENTS

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. Preston Schwartz of the arrival of a son to Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz in Philadelphia on Sunday morning. Both mother and son are doing well. Mr. Preston Schwartz, who is the father of nine children, was a happy grandfather when the news reached him. His genial features lighted up as he received the expected news and he has been passing out cigars to a few of his intimate friends and acquaintances.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

On Monday evening at the Congregational Church a farewell reception was tendered Rev. C. C. Wilson and family. An assembly of friends and members of the church as well as representatives of other churches were there to wish them God speed.

A program of music was given by Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst, Mrs. James N. Hawks, Captain J. A. Osgood and Mrs. James George Norris, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Remarks of commendation and appreciation were made by Rev. Webster who has been so closely associated with Mr. Wilson in the church work during his ministry here, also a few words by Mr. E. J. Webster.

Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid Society, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Osgood, Mrs. Samuel Stork and the girls of Mrs. Hull's Sunday School class.

TAKES NO ACCOUNT OF TIME

Australian "Sundowner" a Carefree Wanderer Along the Dusty River Roads of Australia.

And there, a lone pathetic figure on the river road of the Australian bush, is the swagman, the sundowner—thus picturesquely named because of his habit of arriving at a homestead exactly as the sun goes down, and so insuring that he will be offered rations and a place to camp should he desire it. There he stumbles in the crossing wheel tracks, Australia's tramp and wanderer, with an individuality of his own which marks him out from all the wayfarers of the world.

The gray dust of the plains is on his bronzed and bearded face, on his simple dress of Crimean shirt and moleskin trousers, on his rough unblackened boots, on his blanket bundle strapped across his shoulders, on his swinging hilly can and dangling ration bags. He carries no staff or stick, but instead a light switch, broken from a wilga tree or buddah bush, with which to brush away the myriad persistent flies which follow him in a dancing cloud.

At his heels is a dog which may be the veriest mongrel, or may be a champion sheep dog of purest pedigree and worth anything up to $250. His day's march may be two miles or twenty, according to the goal which he has set himself to reach as the sun goes down. Sometimes he will camp for a day or a week or a month in a bend of the river. Time is of no account to the sundowner on the river road. —Will H. Ogilvie in the King's Highway.

WORDS TOO OFTEN CONFUSED

Excellent Point Made in Emphasis of Difference Between "Training" and "Education."

The difference between training and education was well expressed by Dr. C. Stuart Gager in his address to the graduating class of the school of horticulture for women, when he said:

"Cloth would be spun on hand looms today had no other factor been introduced into spinning than the instruction of daughters by mothers. This kind of instruction does not make for progress; it can never convert a trade into a profession. The spinning jenny was not invented by a spinner, nor the wireless telegraph by a telegraph operator, nor the science of agronomy by practical farmers.

"Progress depends upon a fullness of preparation exceeding the limits of anticipated requirement in practice. That is why I have never liked the phrase 'teachers' training class.' Horses may be trained, and a well-trained horse may be depended on to do accurately and promptly the tricks that are taught him. But place him in a new situation or confront him with a new problem or an old one somewhat altered—and you may then learn clearly and easily the difference between training and education."—Montreal Herald.

Find Date Valuable Food.

Dates form the staple food of the Arabs in a large part of Arabia and are served in some form at every meal. Sirup and vinegar are made from old dates, and by those who disregard the teachings of the Koran a kind of brandy is distilled from them. The date pit is ground and fed to the cows and sheep, so that nothing of the precious fruit may be lost. Whole pits are used as beads and counters for the Arab children in their games on the desert sand.

New Plant Fertilizer.

Experiments in England with a new bacterized peat fertilizer have resulted in remarkable increases in plant growth and productivity, while plants believed to be dying have been restored to better than normal conditions.

Laissez-Faire.

Laissez-faire means letting alone; a general noninterference with individual freedom of action; the let-alone principle of policy of the government and political economy. The term was first used in France to designate the principle of political economy which would leave industry and trade absolutely free from taxation and restriction by government except so far as required by public peace and order. It has since been extended to include noninterference with any guiltless exercise of the individual will.

Highway Improvement

HOW DRAGS MAINTAIN ROADS

Simple and Inexpensive Device Well Adapted for Producing Smooth and Uniform Surface.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The drag is a simple and inexpensive device for maintaining certain types of roads which when wet become rutted under traffic and which become firm on drying out. It is also well adapted for producing a smooth and uniform surface on newly constructed roads in which the material used for surfacing is earth, earthy gravel or some similar material. It is essentially a maintenance implement and its use in construction is distinctly secondary. Roads which are very rocky or very sandy cannot be materially improved by its use.

Properly used at the right time the road drag performs four distinct offices. First, by moving at an angle to the traveled way it tends to produce or preserve a crowned cross section. Second, if used when the material of the surface is not compact and hard, it tends to reduce ruts and other irregularities in the road by moving material from points which are relatively high to those which are relatively low. Third, when used after a rain it accelerates the drying out of the road by spreading out puddles of water and thus increasing the surfaces exposed to evaporation. Fourth, if the surface material is in a slightly plastic state, dragging smears over and partially seals the so-called pores which naturally occur in earthy material, and thus makes the road surface more or less impervious to water. The advantage of this smearing action of the drag will be more readily understood if a sample of ordinary earth is examined under a magnifying glass. Such an examination will show that the earth closely resembles a sponge or honeycomb in structure, and the desirability of closing the open pores will be readily apparent.

If used improperly or at the wrong time, the drag may do actual injury to a road. Dragging a very dry road, for example, serves to increase the quantity of dust and may do additional damage by destroying the seal produced during previous dragging. If, on the other hand, the road is very wet and muddy, the irregularities in the surface are likely to be increased rather than diminished by dragging.

BETTER ROADS OF TOMORROW

They Will Be Built Much Wider and Stronger Than Many We Have Now in Various States.

With the adoption of efficient methods of construction and maintenance for all the roads soon to be built by the various states, and also for those built by the large federal appropriation for interstate roads under the federal aid act, our roads of tomorrow should be of maximum value to everyone. They will be built much wider and stronger than many we have now, and of the most durable materials, for they will have to bear a greatly increased motortruck traffic if the growth in use of such trucks in the last few years is any criterion.

NEED MORE GOOD HIGHWAYS

One of Benefits of War Is Sure to Be Increase in Thoroughly Improved Roads.

One of the benefits of the war is sure to be more good roads in this country, and in other parts of the world where highways have not been generally and thoroughly improved. We used to say "better roads," but now there is a large mileage so good that if the rest were brought up to the best American level, nothing more could reasonably be asked. Many roads in America are quite worthy of comparison with any in Europe. All we need is more of them, and then still more until the country is gridironed and netted with such highways.

Good Roads Available.

When the people of the towns and country unite to build and maintain roads then will good roads be available.

Tractor on Highways.

Avoid running on highways with the tractor in summer unless deep lugs are removed from the wheels or tracks.

Ax Is Best Treatment.

In a general way, the best treatment for a sick hen is the ax.

SPRAYING

By JAMES P. RICHARDSON.
(Dean of the Proso Preparatory School, Houston, Tex.)

SEVERAL years ago, in response to the urge then prevalent of "Back to the Farm," I traded my large city property for an 80-acre apple farm in the Ozark mountains. This farm had once been exceedingly valuable, but under a non-resident owner and a very shiftless tenant it had been allowed to degenerate till it was almost valueless. I took possession in July and the gross receipts for sales that fall from the entire farm were less than $80—less than a dollar an acre in income.

I had moved to the farm with my family and I devoted that winter to studying apple culture. I procured and read all the pamphlets issued by the national government and the state on this subject and corresponded with successful apple growers. By spring I felt myself competent to assume control. Under my direction we pruned and plowed the orchard and sprayed at what we thought the proper time. We had a large crop—or what seemed to me a large one—picking more than 4,000 bushels of apples. They were, however, of poor grade and affected with bitter rot and San Jose scale, while the curculio moth made heavy ravages. My net income was $700.

I realized now that it was necessary to appeal for help. I did so. Upon the suggestion of the state board of agriculture I secured the services of a young man just graduated from the college of agriculture, where he had spent four years in studying fruit raising, particularly apples. He came to the farm in January and I at once put him in complete charge.

He knew his business. I believed in him from the start. To watch him prune the trees was an inspiration. He took the utmost care not to infect one tree from another, using aseptic solutions with his tools. He cut the trees till I feared there would be little left. But most of all to be admired was his method of determining when and how to spray. From the various trees he cut cultures which he forced to grow in fruit jars, and watched them for the development of the various kinds of diseases. With this knowledge he set his time for spraying, and mixed his ingredients to fit the special cases.

The result was astounding; that very year we harvested more than 8,000 bushels of apples, and more than three-fourths of them were of first grade. My old farmer neighbors who had laughed at the "college feller" who ran my orchard, now came and admitted that he was right and asked him to give them suggestions with their own fruit.

But not yet had I succeeded; for I learned that it was not enough to know how to raise superior apples. I must also learn how to market them. We sold them through the usual channels of the jobbers in the large cities, and our income for the whole season was but slightly more than $1,000—just 20 cents a bushel on the average for first-class fruit.

The jobbers reported to us that our shipments came at a time of glutted markets, or were so badly damaged on the way that they had to be sacrificed. One carload of Jonathans which I had carefully selected and packed myself, knowing that not a poor apple went into the boxes, was turned into vinegar as being too small and too poor to be sold for eating; at any rate that was the report sent

'Twasn't a Bird

Something had gone sadly wrong in the postoffice, and various employees hustled hither and thither and knitted their brows in attempts to ascertain what was what and why.

Mr. Springsteen, postmaster, knew just a trifle of his customary calm as he queried among messengers, carriers, clerks and others to learn how it might be that a poor little oriole was injured while in transit by parcel us and upheld by affidavits. For this carload we got $160.

A CITY MARKET

GRADING AND PACKING

During the winter I formed a new campaign. I moved to the city, leaving the farm in charge of my tried and true assistant. The week before the Jonathans were to ripen I visited every grocery store in the city, large and small, and offered to deliver to them such apples as I showed as samples, for $1.90 a bushel box, prepaid. As that grade of apple was then selling to the retailer by the jobber for $2.50 at the least, they were pleased by my offer, and within three days I had sold three carloads—1,800 boxes. I wired to the farm to ship them, and gave the express company the names and addresses of the consignees.

About ten o'clock in the morning of the second day the express company telephoned me to come down at once. I did so, and there found all my apples but 100 boxes, piled in the hot depot. Every shipment except one had been refused by the dealers. They had not even opened them for inspection, and in most cases had refused to let them be unloaded from the delivery wagons.

I started out to learn the cause of this extraordinary behavior. My first inquiries were unsuccessful, the dealers evading answer. But after a while I found an old German who was willing to talk, and he told me that the jobbers of the city had sent an agent to see them the day before and told them that if they took my apples as agreed, the jobbers would refuse them further "courtesies"—which meant they could buy no more fruit from the regular wholesale dealers. In self-protection, therefore, the retailers had to decline my shipments. The one who had dared to disobey this drastic order from the overlords was the largest retail firm in the city, which also conducted a wholesale department, and had taken the apples in that side of their business.

Still unconquered, but feeling mighty weakened, I went to the jobbers direct. The first man who learned my name turned on his heels from me and slammed the door of his office in my face. The next one told me with an oath that he couldn't do business with me. So it went along the row till at last by giving a fictitious name and even denying that I was myself, I found two jobbers who would take the apples, to be sold on the morrow on commission.

The next morning I attended the sale of my own apples on the sidewalk in front of the wholesale house. I saw the apples sold at prices ranging from $2.50 to $2.80, and I felt quite reconciled to my fate. But when I came in for settlement their books showed that no box had sold for more than $1.50, and their clerks all declared that to be the case. I was offered and had to accept that sum, less their commission of 25 per cent.

The other dealer reported that he post from his office. And, furthermore, he must learn how it happened that the little oriole had not been duly insured as directed by the owner and consignee.

"Indeed," said Mrs. M. (said owner and consignee), "I surely told that man to insure the oriole, and now I ought to be paid."

"I certainly am sorry the poor thing got hurt," humbly replied the postmaster.

"You know what an oriole is, don't you, Mr. Springsteen?"

"Oh, yes, I know, it's a bird," came the proud reply.

"No it isn't either," said Mrs. M. "It is one of those baby carts that fold up."

Strangers Prepared For.

"Does this dog growl?" asked the lady of the dog dealer. "Oh, yes, ma'am," was the answer. "Well, I want a dog that doesn't growl." "Don't you want something that will growl when strangers come around?" "No, my husband will attend to that."

If You Need a Medicine

You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

DATES IN DELIGHTFUL COMBINATION.

A handful of dates and a bit of bread feeds the Arab who is able to travel over the hot sands of the desert. It is hard for us to look upon dates, figs, raisins and prunes as food. They are, however, most valuable foods, and as sweets are most wholesome for children.

Stuffed dates are so well known that it is unnecessary to speak of them, though a variety of stuffing may be used to vary them. Stuffed with a rich cream cheese and chopped nuts, they make a most dainty finish to a dinner, serving crackers with them and the small cupful of coffee.

Date Cake.—Cream half a cupful of shortening, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one well beaten egg, a cupful of sour milk, in which has been dissolved a teaspoonful of soda. Flavor with nutmeg and add flour enough to roll out in a thin sheet. Divide in two parts. Over one spread a layer of finely chopped dates; lay the other sheet on top and press lightly together; cut with a cookie cutter into cakes. Bake in a hot oven.

Date Whip.—Cook one cupful of chopped stoned dates in one-half cupful of boiling water until smooth. Press through a sieve. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, add one-third of a cupful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fold in the date pulp and pile lightly in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes. Serve with a custard made of the yolks of the eggs and a pint of milk, or whipped cream may be used as a sauce.

Apple and Dates.—Roll a thin round rich pastry and heap on to it a cupful of two of chopped apples and a cupful of dates, also chopped. Roll up and place in a baking pan. Add a half cupful of brown sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of boiling water. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with cream, if there is not sufficient sauce left in the pan after the pudding is baked.

We call him strong who stands unmoved—
Calm as some tempest-beaten rock—
When some great trouble huris his shock;
We say of him, "His strength is proved."
But when the spent storm folds its wings
How bears he then life's little things?
—Ellen Alletten.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

In these days of costly foods anything which will take the place of a favorite but too expensive dish will be welcomed. Here is a vouchered substitute for cream as a sauce: Mix together two tablespoonfuls each of sugar and cornstarch and cook until smooth and thickened somewhat; be sure that the starchy taste has been removed by cooking. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat well, return to the fire and cook until of the consistency of cream.

Berry Cake.—Sift together a teaspoonful of soda with two cupfuls of flour. In another bowl put one cupful of sugar, half a cupful of shortening and warm it enough to easily cream it; add the yolk of one egg and one whole egg, beat well, add one teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Mix well and add one cupful of canned berries, juice and fruit as it comes, stir well. Now mix with the flour mixture and bake in a loaf. Ice with the egg white left from the cake, pouring boiled sirup over it. Use one cupful of sugar and a quarter of a cupful of water boiled until it hairs, then pour slowly, beating all the time over the stiffly beaten white.

Charleston Muffins.—Beat together one cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Add two eggs beaten light, a pinch of salt a grating of nutmeg and one cupful of milk. Sift in two cupfuls of flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in hot muffin pan or in a shallow baking pan.

Swiss-Hamburger.—Take a pound of hamburger steak and chop. Mix with it one-third of a cupful of flour, add seasonings of salt, pepper and onion, make into small cakes, roll in flour, brown in fat; then add enough water to cook slowly for two hours on the back of the stove.

If either man or woman would realize the full power of personal beauty it must be by cherishing noble thoughts and hopes and purposes; by having something to do and something to live for that is worthy of humanity, and which by expanding the capacities of the soul gives expansion and symmetry to the body which contains it.—Upham.

A FEW GOOD SOUPS.

There is no one dish more usually liked than a well-seasoned soup. The following will be found suggestive:

Liver Soup.—Take half a pound of cold-cooked liver and grind it through a meat chopper. Fry one small onion sliced, in two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, then add the liver. Add one cupful of dry bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper and add three pints of good stock. Cook fifteen minutes, add a beaten egg yolk and serve at once.

Scotch Soup.—Peel and slice enough onions to make a cupful; cut fine one carrot and two stalks of celery. Fry brown in butter, being careful not to burn. When brown, add three pints of water in which a chicken has been boiled and one-half cupful of cooked chicken cut fine. Cover the saucepan and simmer forty minutes. Beat the yolk of an egg, season with salt and pepper. Mix with a little of the soup; add the remainder of the soup and heat carefully but do not boil. Serve with sliced bread.

Dutch Soup.—Put a half cupful of grated cheese into a saucepan with three pints of milk. Simmer gently for ten minutes. When the cheese is dissolved season with pepper and salt and a pinch of sugar. Add half a cupful of cold-cooked macaroni, cut in bits. Beat three eggs until foamy, mix with a little of the soup. Add carefully to the hot soup and serve with sliced toasted bread.

Cream of Celery Soup.—Have ready one cupful of celery and put through a sieve. Reduce the water in which the celery was cooked to half a cupful. Put into a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, season with salt and pepper and stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix well. Add three cupfuls of milk and stir until it boils. When the mixture is like thin cream add the celery and the celery liquor. Reheat and serve at once.

The mountain of success is steep and high.
Who gains the summit climbs a weary way;
And though brave feet grow stronger with rebuff
The rocky path a coward's steps may stay.

WAYS WITH LIVER.

The usual method of serving liver with bacon is about the extent of liver dishes in the average family. There are various ways of serving liver, a few of which are given below:

Liver Patties.—Scald a pound of liver and grind it with a fourth of a pound of bacon and one onion through the meat chopper. Season well, form into small cakes and cook in a little hot bacon fat, browning both sides.

Boiled Liver.—Cut liver in half-inch slices, cover with boiling water, let stand five minutes, then drain and wipe dry. Sprinkle with seasonings and broil on a well-greased broiler for five minutes. Serve dotted with bits of butter.

Liver Hot Pot.—Cut liver into slices a half-inch thick, soak in cold water for a few minutes; then dry them thoroughly; lay them in a saucepan and dredge with seasoned flour. Cover with thin slices of bacon and sprinkle with chopped onion and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Cook at the simmering point well covered for one and one-half hours. Serve garnished with rolls of fried bacon.

Liver Dumplings.—Chop half a pound of calf's liver, add a chopped onion, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Mix with two well-beaten eggs and one tablespoonful of butter. Add enough fine bread crumbs to form into balls and boil in soup stock. Serve in the soup.

Ball Frocks of Tulle and Lace

It would seem as if all of the lovely things designed for this year's debutante might be labeled after the good old birthday fashions of long ago: "For a Good Little Girl." Certainly the girls of today have earned their right to the most beautiful and the most frivolous of lovely clothes through the faithful, unflagging and untiring war services, observes a fashion writer. Indeed the debutantes of last year deserve a special lining this year. It used to be said one could tell a debutante by her nice, clean little white gloves which she wore throughout the evening, never removing them even for supper; for a debutante of other days was a demure and timid little soul who carefully refrained from "unladylike" behavior, and certainly she never "ate," she only "nibbled" at parties. Nowadays debutantes wear no gloves and do not worry about their finger tips.

New Dance Frocks Are Fairylke. Some of the new dance frocks are fairylke in their beauty, fashioned of clouds of tulle and filmy lace showing through the stuff. The life of a tulle frock is just about one evening. I know of nothing more arresting than a recent visit to a smart couturiere, where six little dance frocks hung waiting to be freshened for the next "fray." The tulle hung in streamers on some and one had been "melted" by a sudden downpour of rain. Some of the tulle frocks—for the most part of white, as properly the debutante's which show with just enough scintillation through the gauzy meshes.

Simplicity the Debutante's Note.

One expects the debutante to be gowned with simplicity, and wise mothers follow this rule in the choice not only of the debuting gown but in the selection of the greater part of the wardrobe as well. The simpler fabrics such as chiffons and georgettes are preferred to the heavier metallic brocade and velvets. The gowns of pastel taffetas are lovely for informal occasions. With these little things with their long slender bodies, pointed in front and fitted with a sash in the back, are worn tiny caps of the pastel silk to match the dress. This is a Parisian fashion just being shown over here and suitable for theatre and restaurant wear. Even in the smaller cities young girls go about nowadays to restaurants and cafes for the dancing, which seems to be more sought than ever. It is for this occasion that the taffeta frocks of the lovely pastel shades and their accompanying caplets are worn.

The favored shade for evening wear in the gay French city for the debutante is emerald green. This is enchantingly combined with silver, and I am sure we can search far and wide before we can find a more beautiful color scheme. Canary yellow is also very much liked this year, but the more pronounced shades are left for older and more sedate people.

It is to the young girl that the

A long-waisted frock of changeable taffeta, a taffeta cape with plaited ruchings and a pink chiffon frock spotted with bows of satin ribbon.

frock should be—are delightfully combined with a shadow lace. The use of lace is a revival of a bygone day, for it has been many years since the lace trimmed ball gown. This type of frock is rather refreshing after the more sophisticated ones of brocade and tinsel which prospered for a time. Of course satin, white or palest flesh pink, is used as a foundation for the tulle and lace dancing frocks. The satin foundation is tight and narrow and short and the overdresses are so placed that they form the extended hip seam not only on mature models but on the most youthful as well. One maker has palliated an underneath layer of tulle with silver spangles lovely overblouses will appeal the most. Some of these, to be worn with skirts of heavy black or midnight blue, are quite long, reaching to within a foot of the hem. Such an overblouse of sand colored georgette is braided from throat to hem in black and gold threads and held in at the waistline with a string belt braided with black and gold. This is worn over a black satin skirt. A companion frock to this, reproduced in midnight blue serge, has the very long overblouse of black satin embroidered in Chinese motifs in colored threads and suggesting a mandarin's coat. The embroidery is deftly done and not in the least garish or conspicuous.

The New Prince of Wales Coat

The newest sport skirts are plaited of plaid and worn with velvet jackets or silken sweaters in dark tones. The sweater is a feature of one's wardrobe which must not be overlooked either by young or old. The silken sweaters with their excellent lines and good service have returned to favor and are preferred for genuine use in the darker shades, browns, blacks and blues. Now and then the debutante exercises her ingenuity and lightens the dark tones by the introduction of some gay and contrasting checks or stripes interwoven in the knitting.

A rumor from across the sea tells us that a new coat for the young girl has been copied from one of the Prince of Wales'. Doubtless he will wear such a coat in this country and it is just as well to know that the English girls have adopted it as the preferred winter wrap. The coat in question is quite long with slightly flaring skirts. A wide and rolling collar ended at the waistline with one button to fasten the coat together. It does sound smart and can be charmingly developed in almost every material and trimmed to advantage with a large fur collar.

The same rumor says that the Sam Brown belt, which was so much worn by officers, accustomed men to their waistline and now our new fall suits with the funny little pinched-in waists and flaring coat skirts are an indirect outgrowth of the officers' belted fashion. One of our American officers says that the British stopped the war every day at 4:30 to have tea, and always puttees and Sam Brown belts were carefully removed for this moment of relaxation and refreshment. Who would have thought that our winter suits would still pay tribute to the glorious men who have added a new lustre to England's name? To women much is given, and because of the pleasing origin of the ripple coat with its narrow and pinched waist I am sure it will be proudly and ubiquitously worn.

"Domestic stories" have ousted cowboy film romances from juvenile favor, according to a census of school children movie patrons in London.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

SCOUTS SHOW UP HUN WORK

The black walnut census which the Boy Scouts of America made for the government during the war, and which resulted in their locating 20,000,000 feet of the valuable timber which could be converted into airplane propellers and gunstocks, disclosed the alarming fact that the tracts of forest populated with these trees in years gone by are now no more. When the emergency arose the forest service was compelled to report that there were no known tracts of this particular timber.

Investigation showed that as far back as 20 years ago, and again 10 years ago, German agents toured through the country, found these tracts and paid what, at that time were considered fabulous prices for the lumber.

Little did the farmers and landowners dream that some of these very trees would be used as the stocks of German guns to be pointed by the thousand at our American and allied soldiers.

True to their slogan of preparedness, however, the army of boy scouts who took part in the recent census for the government, planted black walnut as they went along on their work, five for each tree cut down, so as to insure against any such death in the future.

They gathered as many of the nuts as they possibly could, and along the fences and roads and in the hollows (selecting low, moist ground), they placed the seed, breaking the hull with their heel, but not removing it, and then dropping it into a hole, which they covered level with the rest of the ground.

SCOUT PROVES HIMSELF A HERO.

Denton McBean, a twelve-year-old Spokane boy scout, is the hero of his troopmates.

Because of the quick action of the young scout, Raymond Rice, returned war hero and uncle of the boy, is alive now, instead of drowned in the waters of Twin lakes.

Hero of battles on the French front, wearer of the distinguished service cross for unusual bravery, and a wound stripe, Rice became exhausted while swimming in the waters of the lake.

Superior Judge R. M. Webster, an eye-witness to the heroic rescue, told the story:

"Denton heard the cry from the beach that a man was drowning. Without removing his clothing he sprang from his cot and dashed to the end of the pier and plunged into the water. Rice had already gone down twice when the lad came up to him.

"There was no hesitancy on the part of Denton, who seized the drowning man by the clothing at the back of his neck and began to tow him toward the shore. Once Rice, in his delirium, seized a young woman near him and would have carried her under, but Denton quickly struck him on the wrist and ordered him to free the girl.

"It was the coolest and most thorough rescue of a drowning man I have ever witnessed."

SCOUT SAVES LIFE OF FRIEND.

An Ogden (Utah) boy has recently given a practical demonstration of boy scout first aid in saving the life of a companion, who had fallen from a horse, and cut himself severely on a bottle, severing an artery.

The scout immediately put into practice his scout knowledge of first aid, making a tourniquet to stop the serious blood flow until the injured lad could get medical aid.

Dr. E. Rich, who was summoned to the lad, declared that in all probability the scout saved the injured boy's life, and complimented him on the able manner in which he had rendered first aid.

SCOUT TROOP ALL RED-HEADED.

As to unusual scout organizations, there's one being formed in Kansas City by Carl Pickwell, who will admit only red-headed boys.

He has already recruited eight "red-heads" and is sure that the remainder of the required 32 will be tenderfoots before the passing of another moon.

No, he hasn't specified any particular shade of red—auburn, chestnut, renna, bright red, dark red, red to scare a bull—any red so long as the dome that tops the applicant's anatomy is of a scarlet hue. Won't it be some troop?

WHAT SCOUTS LEARN IN WOODS.

Twenty-two Tacoma boy scouts, ranking in special merit after a year's program, camped at Longmire Springs, Rainier National park, where they learned the dual arts of camp-keeping and forest conservation.

They were learning to be real Americans, those scouts, and becoming masters of the woods and forests.

Tramping from 10 to 20 miles each day, they became familiar with the trees and animals and the climate conditions of the Western woods.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

NEGLECTED RADIATORS.

"Tonight the story will be about neglected radiators," said Daddy. "Pretty big words," said Nancy. "Don't you quite know what they mean?" asked Nick. "I think I do, but they're so big I'd like to be sure I know."

"I'll explain," said Daddy. "A thing that is neglected is a thing that is left alone and doesn't have any attention paid to it, and, of course, you know what radiators are? They're the pipes through which the heat comes."

"Well, this is what they had to say to each other in a city apartment house:

"I do declare," said the dining-room radiator, "it is a shame the way we're not even thought of for many months."

"You're right," said the drawing-room radiator, "you're absolutely right." "Throughout this whole summer I've never heard one of those creatures say a word of praise for us, and yet look how good we were to them all last winter. We gave them heat, and if it hadn't been for us they would have shivered awfully."

"They would have caught colds and had chills and had a most dreadful time of it. But we saved them from all that. Then they can't even take the time or the trouble to say thank you, and when they're suffering with the heat in the summer they should think of us."

"Perhaps that isn't a time when we can really expect it of them," said the drawing-room radiator.

"Perhaps not," said the dining-room radiator, "and yet I don't see why not. They should say when they are so hot in the summer: 'Well, summer heat isn't like our good old radiator heat in the winter. That just keeps us good and warm, but doesn't make us hang out on the fire escapes and out of the windows to get cool. And we never feel we have to take swims after a day when the radiators have been working. Quite the right sort of heat comes from radiators. It makes us comfortable and keeps us from suffering with the cold. But it doesn't make us suffer with the heat the way this summer heat is doing.'"

"Is that what you expect they should say in the summer?" asked the drawing-room radiator.

"I think they might," said the dining-room radiator, "for we never make it so hot for them they have to fan themselves and all such things. We don't do anything of that sort. We just give them nice, comfortable heat and should it get a trifle too warm for them they can get cooled off so easily by turning us off and opening the window a little. They can't get cooled quickly like that in the summer time, but they don't seem to realize that."

"We Gave Them Heat."

"They really don't appreciate us, that's the truth," said the drawing-room radiator.

"Of course they can get cooled off quickly in the winter time by the aid of old man winter and his friends. They're much better workers at that sort of thing than old man summer is. In fact, I don't believe summer is any good for that," said the dining-room radiator.

"Oh, well," said the drawing-room radiator, "the time of the year is coming when we will be busy. We'll laugh when we're being turned on and we'll gurgle with glee."

"We'll forget about the summer and the time that passed when we were neglected, for the winter is on our side of the game."

"Then, too," said the dining-room radiator, "we shouldn't take too much praise for this ourselves, even if we could get it, for after all it's the furnace which is at the root of the whole thing, and it's the furnace man who helps, too."

"And there is the coal bin which does its part. Still, let's not think of them, for we are the radiators, and while we may be neglected in the summer, what happy winters we do have with so much attention paid to us."

"Ah, so much attention paid to us in the winter," repeated the drawing-room radiator, "and the winter will not be long in coming now."

The Good Samaritan.

A Sunday school teacher had been telling her class the story of the Good Samaritan. When she asked them what the story meant, a little boy said:

"It means that when I am in trouble my neighbors must help me out—Christian Register."

Bethany church is seeing times of blessing and considerable interest is evidenced in the series of sermons on the second coming of our Lord, not only by the town people but by Bible students from some distance around. The graphic description of the marriage supper of the Lamb will long be remembered by the full congregation. Any person desirous of enjoying not only scriptural teachings but eloquent preaching, such as has been appreciated in the first circles of people of literary taste in Great Britain, should not miss hearing the learned Doctor Rawlings, both morning and evening next Sunday.
